Membrane conditioning

Before using the inopor membranes for the first time, rinsing with the feed (pure, clean medium) that is intended for later use or operation of the membranes or with the in-process CIP solutions is recommend.
Ideally, the highest possible crossflow velocity (high feed volume flow) should be used with the permeate outlet initially closed or the driving force as low as possible.

Following this measure, it is recommended to measure the achievable permeate flow. For this purpose, pure feed solution must be used and an appropriate driving force must be set (permeate outlet open).
This so-called pure flow (maximum achievable permeate flow) can later be used to evaluate the cleaning.
